

Shavkatjon Ahmedov

Full-stack developer

I am a backend developer. My journey in the IT field began at the University of Information Technology, where I graduated from the Faculty of Computer Science. After university, there was a break for several months, and since January 2023, I have been studying backend development through courses at MohirDev, AstraCode, and independently on online platforms. I found backend development especially interesting! My course is now complete, but there is always new information to learn and opportunities for growth in programming! Currently, I work as a developer at a company called IT-Pro in the Russian Federation and also do freelance work.
