

Chapter 03: The Lustful Devil

“Good evening to you ladies”

The man spoke in a low voice, just loud enough that both of them could hear but so low that if someone was standing just a couple of steps behind them, they would not hear the words. They ignored the man. Jina looked closely at the man. He was someone in his late teens and was just about the age of marriage. His body was weak and thin and through his shirt she could see his ribcage as well. The hair growth on his face had just started and his cheekbones were protruding. But the strangest thing that she noticed was the color of his eyes. They were bright blue, and almost as if he has no pupils at all. She had seen blue eyes but never such bright blue eyes. In her culture blue eyes were considered a bad omen so when she saw blue eyes she almost jumped a step back.

“I am just here to talk to you ladies for a bit”

“Don’t bother us” while Jina was too stunned to speak anything Rashmi replied to the man “we have a lot of work to do.”

“It is not you I have business with woman. I want to have a chat with her” he pointed at Jina.

Jina who was flustered at first, collected her thought “what do you want?”

“Would you listen to me first?” man joined his hands and pleaded to Jina

“Make it quick, we have to go fast”

The man started speaking “I have been living in this forest for so long that even I don’t remember. Through years of wandering in the forest one day I came across two women in their youth playing in the stream. They were really cheerful and happy. I watched them play, fight, caress each other and being in love. As I was watching all this, I fell in love with one of them”

Both Jina and Rashmi felt a chill running down their spine. They knew who this man was talking about; it was them. This man has been watching them for so long, but they never noticed. They always made sure that no one was following them but this man was always near them.

Rashmi shouted loudly “What in the God’s name were you doing peeping on two women, you scoundrel?”

“Well nothing in his name, but by my own volition. I fell in love with her and now I have a request to make to you.”

“What request?” Jina asked him

The man smiled and pointed towards Jina “ I wish for you and I to become lovers and live as lovers from today onwards. I wish for us to have intercourse as a husband and wife. This is the only request I have from you”

After hearing his words Jina felt disgusted. His words made her gut feel churn and nauseating. How could someone who she has never met or even saw in her life come and ask to have intercourse with her so openly “What rubbish are you talking about. I am a married woman. And till this day I have not even let my husband touch me... How can you even imagine I would let a stranger touch me?” Jina’s eyes were getting red with anger and her breathing became heavier.

“Do not misunderstand me, I assure you that having intercourse with me will give you the pleasure nothing in this world can give you” man glanced towards Rashmi for a moment and then turned back to Jina “I have been watching you and I know everything about it”

Jina got even angrier that he had the guts to look to Rashmi “How dare you look at us with such vile intentions”

“No No No... you are misunderstanding something” the man put both his hands in front of him. Even his hands were so thin that they can see all the veins and bones through the skin “I just wish to have intercourse with you, I do not intend to insult any of you”

“Let’s just go” Rashmi who was silent till now spoke “we will get late if we waste any more time here”

“That’s right” Jina agreed to her, and they walked past the man. They did not even look back at the impudent man who was suggesting such an act to them. After walking a few steps they started giggling and laughing at what had just happened. When they were young there were times when men came to them and asked them to be their lovers but it was the first time someone came like this.

“Just what was that idiot thinking?” Jina said

“Maybe he fell for your looks or maybe something else” Rashmi was elbowing Jina “Maybe he just thought it would be easier with a married woman”

“That’s so disgusting” Jina shivered a bit “but to think someone was watching us from the forest. We should bring some knife or weapon with us from now on”

“What could an old scrawny bastard do to us anyway. If he tried something, he would die if we just slap him once” Rashmi told Jina laughing

“yeah... wait what did you say?” Jina turned her head to Rashmi

“I said that old bastard cannot do anything to us even if he tried”

“No no... are your eyes for buttons. That was not an old man, he was a youngster in his early teens”

“What are you saying? Didn’t you see the wrinkles on his face, his slouched back and white hair?”

“What are you talking about? He was a young boy with nothing but bones for the body”

Both of them were confused at what had just happened. They both were talking about the same person but both of them saw different men. They turned back to see if the man was still there to confirm what they had seen but there was no one on the road. Again a chill ran down their spines and they finally noticed something else. The forest was silent. It was not silent like there are no people around them but there was no noise of animals, birds or even insects. It was completely silent and even wind was still. Both of them started feeling nauseating and headache and thought they would vomit. They looked at each other and just ran away. There was no one on the road but they could still feel some one was watching them.

Jina reached her home a little late, but her family was busy in doing their own chores. But she saw her husband on the cot sitting outside her home waiting for her to return. He was quite impatient and was tapping her foot on the ground. Seeing him sitting out Jina thought he has returned before his usual time, what happened?

“You came early today? Is everything alright?”

“Everything is fine” Vijay replied “rather it is better than fine”

Jina got even more confused “I have finally collected sufficient money to go visit the temple in capital. I have made all the arrangements and we will leave tomorrow morning.”

Jina was not expecting this the sudden change but she accepted that this was bound to happen one day and she cannot run away from it anymore. She smiled at Vijay “I will make the necessary preparations”

“Is something wrong?” Vijay asked Jina

“Everything is fine, Why?” Jina was confused by Vijay’s question. Vijay has been waiting for them to go to the capital for a long time but then when she accepted it he was asking if everything was alright.

“Your smile seemed a bit different so I thought something was not right” Vijay looked at her face and then paused and thought for a few moments and then again looked at her face “If you don’t want to we can go some other time”

Jina just realized that her husband was not only someone who wanted to do the deed with her but was genuinely concerned for her. He truly loved her and even though she had maintained a distance between them he was caring for her. She had seen many people around her but none of the husbands were as concerning about their wives as Vijay was, even Rashmi’s husband was not that good.

“No Let’s just go tomorrow and then we can....” Her cheeks blushed “we can soon give our parents the good news”

“What good news” Vijay tilted his head

Jina looked at the innocent expression and felt truly happy for the first time with her husband “idiot” and just ran away to the kitchen.

It was almost mid night and the moonlight was shining through the small hole in the wall. Jina and Vijay were just lying down besides each other, talking, teasing and laughing. They were talking about their past and how their life was before they even came to know each other. Jina was surprised to know just how long Vijay longed for Jina and he was just waiting for him to accept in his life.

“You know Jina, after coming back from the our lives would be changed completely”

“I know” Jina couldn’t find any other words to say but she was ready for the change and what is to come. Rather, she was a bit happy that her life is going to change so drastically from tomorrow onwards. Now she will not have to pretend to be a wife but she could be a real wife. She turned to look Vijay’s face but he was fast asleep. Probably all the work he was doing entire day tired him to fall asleep this fast.

“I wish I had the chance to tell Rashmi about this”

“You will get the chance soon enough” Jina heard a familiar voice from the corner of her room. She tried to get up but her body was not budging an inch. He could only turn her head she tried to speak but the words did not come out of her mouth “don’t be alarmed, I am but your lover who requested to have intercourse with you”

Her eyes were wide open as she saw the young man standing on the corner of the room in exact attire she had seen him near the stream. She tried to scream but she couldn’t. she turned her head to Vijay but he was asleep. She shook her head violently but to no avail.

“Don’t worry my love, he is not going to wake up and disturb us” the young man was smiling “tonight we will be one as lover we are”

Jina was struggling to move, to scream, cry for help but she was unable to do anything. Her eyes were filled with tears and terror that was unfolding in front of her. The young man with a gentle smile started taking steps toward her, but with every step his demeanor changed a bit.

His thin and skinny figure changed into a muscular body, his skin color changed to black and red, his eyes turned green from blue and then red and then white. Even his skin color was not permanent; it was changing with every step. His smile turned into a grin and then the corners of his lips widened to reach his ears. He became taller and wider than before. And as he reached her cot, his bald head was almost touching the ceiling.

The man or the creature that was standing in front of Jina removed his cloak and stood bare before her eyes. His body was covered in scars. Jina looked at his organ and it was larger and thicker than Jina’s forearm and stood tall.

He moved his left hand closer to Jina and started removing her clothes one by one. He took his time removing clothes like he was not just something that only wanted to have intercourse with Jina but rather something that was enjoying every little act that was in between. His fingers were long and his nails were pointy scratching Jina’s skin wherever he touched. There were already dozens of scratches on her belly and he had not even started doing anything.

After a long period of time Jina was completely bare lying down with her hands on the side and legs straight. The man was standing staring at Jina but his face had a bit unsatisfactory look.

“Something doesn’t feel right” the man closed his arms, narrowed his eyes and tilted his head sideways. He was thinking about what was missing and then it suddenly came to him as Jina saw his eyes widened again and he spread his arms “Of course, how can I forget it. It is the aesthetics that is missing. Your posture is like that of a corpse. Though I don’t mind it but then it is no different than regular stuff”

Jina's heart was beating even faster and she realized what meaning his words hold and it was kind of an indirect warning to her that if she tried to resist him, she would become one of the many corpses that he possessed in the past. She closed her eyes and wished it to end as soon as possible.

“Why have you closed your eyes?” the man said to Jina in an anger filled voice “is my figure that much disgusting to you? ANSWER ME” his voice was mixed with a kind of growl and Jina could feel the cold from the air disappear. She opened her eyes and saw the man hunched forward with his hands spread like a claw and nails like spears, ready to jump onto Jina. His eyes were filled with rage and his teeth were scarier than that of a Hyena. “DO I LOOK THAT DISGUSTING TO YOU?” Jina shook her head in no while her tears flew like an unstoppable dam. In that moment Jina knew that if she wanted to live she not only have to bear this man having his way with her but she will have to watch him doing so.

“That is what I thought as well” the man straightened up and calmed his voice “oh I understood it now” the joy in his eyes returned “you were not disgusted but it is your first time with your lover so you was just shy. I TOTALLY understand this.” He held her hands and put them above her head, then crossed her legs.” The man licked his lips. His tongue was pointy and longer than Jina's fingers. If only it was divided in two, one could think it was a snake's tongue. The man giggled while saying this “don't worry I will be gentle”

The man hunched forward held Jina's feet in her large hands. He started licking them. His tongue was running through her toes and then to the lines of her sole. Jina could feel his tongue on her feet. She had Goosebumps all over her body. He raised her feet and then started licking her ankle and then her calves, her knees and then her thighs. He then bit on her thigh and giggled “do you like this” and then bit harder.

Then he spread her legs and started licking her over the door with his long tongue. Then he slowly inserted her tongue inside the door to the deepest part of her body and moved it. Grabbed her thighs and then started licking harder and harder. His nails were digging into her skin. Her entire body was shivering and trembling with pains and sensation, the more she moved them harder he licked and grabbed her.

He then raised his head “that was the taste of my life my love I just cannot get that enough” he then started sucking his breasts inserted his fingers in her. He was biting and sucking her breasts and moving his fingers rashly. Then he climbed up and started sucking her lips. He was going harder and harder shaking her cot violently.

Then he stood up and pulled her along with him making her sit on the cot. He then held her head with both of his arms and then inserted his organ in Jina’s mouth. He then started moving her head back and forth giving him fellatio. “You are so great my love” He was moving his hips fast and hard shaking her entire body.

Then he threw her body on the bed and then came over her “I can’t wait any longer my love” He spread her legs and put his organ over her door. Jina looked at what was just about to happen. She had just finally made up her mind to give his body and soul to her husband after so long and it was exact this moment when this man decided to show up and ruin everything. How can I live after something like this.

The man thrust his organ with all high might inside her. The blood splattered all over the place and the man started moving his hips violently. He put her legs to the side and held her shaking breasts with his palms grabbing them with his nails.

Jina was waiting for it to end. The pain was unbearable but she had to bear it if she had to live. She was just lying down without any strength to move or resist. All she could do was to wait for him to stop. But the man was not stopping rather he was putting more and more power after every thrust.

Finally when the sun began to rise and its first rays hit the house, the man stopped “just look at the time my love, I think I should leave for now” and the man walked a couple of steps and disappeared from the room. Jina was lying in the bed naked and violated and was in tremendous pain. Her tears were not stopping and her heart was still beating faster and faster. She was weeping continuously and didn’t even realize when she fell asleep.

In the morning when she woke up she found that she was not only properly dressed like when she went to sleep but there were not a single wound on her body. As the day went by everything was normal and she began to think that it was probably a nightmare. She went to Vijay

“When will we be leaving for the capital?”

“We are not going” Vijay replied bluntly

“Why?” She was confused at what Vijay was saying. Yesterday he had prepared everything and was running all day so that they can go to the capital “why are we not going?”

“I don’t know. I just don’t want to go any more” Vijay was apathetic to her question “I need to go to work. I will come a bit late today” and just left. Jina did not understand what was happening but she decided it was probably better to go to Rashmi and talk things out with her.

The sun was still young and she was walking to Rashmi’s house she saw a familiar figure standing beside the road waving at her. She realized it was the same man she met yesterday and came in her dream to torment her. She walked pass the man to go to Rashmi’s house and then she heard the man saying “don’t be so cruel my love. I don’t think you can forget the last night that easily”

Everything that happened flashed before her eyes and she turned around to look at man but there was no one there. Then she heard the whispers in the wind “don’t tell anyone our little secret my love, or else your family will have to pay for this”

She ran back to her house scared and drenched in sweat.

“What happened? Why are you so scared?” Her mother in-Law asked her worriedly

She controlled her breathing and decided to tell her everything but then the whispers in the air returned and warned her again.

“Nothing Maa.. it was just.... Just... a Dog... yes A dog started chasing me. I ran that is why I am like this”

“Go and freshen up, you have to take food for your father-in-law and Vijay” her mother-in-law left for her work and Jina was standing in her own house not knowing where to go. She waited till Vijay returns from his house and will tell him what happened last night but as soon as Vijay returned he ate his food and went directly to sleep.

“I need something to talk about” Jina told Vijay

“I wanted to talk but I am too tired for anything. Let’s talk in the morning” and as soon as Vijay said those lines he was in deep sleep.

Jina laid beside him and was looking at the ceiling then she again felt the cold in the air. She looked around and again saw the man standing in the corner “I am back my love”