About Me

Farhad Partovipirouz is an Iranian filmmaker and independent animator, specializing in animation and documentary cinema. With a unique blend of historical insight and futuristic imagination, I bring thought-provoking narratives to life through innovative visual storytelling.

Holding dual degrees in English Language Teaching and Accounting, I have over a decade of experience in creative production. My filmography includes animated documentaries like Russian Air Force: The Origins and sci-fi pieces such as Time Machine: War of the Planets (2025).

My work has been officially selected by several international film festivals and has been praised for its creativity, depth, and technical sophistication. As a multidisciplinary digital artist, I am proficient in Adobe Photoshop, OpenToonz, Moho, and Blender, bringing strong technical expertise to every stage of animation production—from concept art and storyboarding to full post-production.

I believe that “movies are not made for profit; profit is made to create movies.” I continue to create meaningful, visually rich projects that bridge past and future narratives.
