In the depths of the writer's soul resides an indomitable passion—a love affair that transcends time and space. At the heart of this creative spirit lies an insatiable craving to shape worlds, characters, and narratives that spring forth from the boundless realms of imagination. Such is the ardor with which I embrace the art of writing,

What follows in this document is a portfolio of some of the work I have done in the field of creative writing. Almost all of them are excerpts of the full project so as to satisfy the copyright obligations.

The Game

A traveler recites his story of encountering a dark and mysterious game in the grand city of Elyndor.

War of Football

In future, football clubs, backed by the support of the masses, will grow so powerful that eventually replace governments across the world. Instead of applying military force to settle their disputes, these newly found institutions would play a game of football against each other.

A small independent club now has to face one of the most powerful teams in the world to fight for their survival. Everything hinges on this one match.
